Welcome to Larry the Leaser's official website. We currently have the newest Honda hatchback ready in the back of our shop. We're recently getting new models that have been as old as from the 1970s! We work with each car to get it into top shape!

This wireframe will work because the navigation bar is immediately at the top for the user to get the information they need. It is also located at the bottom so that there's no need for the user to scroll all the way back up, or the user need to cfind the "Back to Top" icon (because this needs to match all users and some people do not know how to navigate a website very well)

To add on, this wireframe works because it looks up to date. Many car dealerships and car companies themselves have this sort of wireframe website, and so somewhat following their ideas can help non-users navigate the page better because it's more consistent.
